The University of Insubria is a medium-sized state university, founded on 14 July 1998 with campuses in Varese, Como and Busto Arsizio. The educational offering ranges across the fields of law and economics, health, sports, humanities and social sciences, science and technology, and is divided into eight departments, to which individual professors belong based on their line of research.

There are 24 three-year degree courses, three single-cycle master's degree courses, one of which offers a double degree, and 16 master's degrees, seven of which offer a double degree. In addition, there are eight PhD programmes, 20 specialisation schools in the medical and dental fields, and around ten master's degrees per year.

A story that officially began on 14 July 1998

The University of Insubria was officially founded on 14 July 1998 with campuses in Varese and Como, but its history began a few years earlier. On 15 January 1973, accredited courses for the second three-year period of Medicine and Surgery, affiliated with the University of Pavia, began in Varese, hosted in a basement room of the Circolo hospital.

In 1987, a feasibility study was conducted on the proposal for a university centre in northern Lombardy, promoted by the chambers of commerce of Como, Sondrio, and Varese, while on 29 February 1988, the rectors of Lombardy's universities expressed their support for new university campuses in Varese and Como, to be established as branches of the universities of Milan and Pavia.

The University of Insubria inaugurates its twenty-eighth academic year, 2025–2026, on Monday 16 February at the Teatro Sociale in Como, at 10.30 a.m. This is the second ceremony presided over by Rector Maria Pierro, who has already announced the date for next year: 5 March 2027, again at the Teatro Sociale in Como, as part of the events marking the centenary of Alessandro Volta's death.

The programme for 16 February will open with institutional greetings from the authorities present, followed by a speech by Rector Maria Pierro, a speech by the President of the General Student Council, Asia Martina Di Lorenzo, and a speech by the Director General, Antonio Romeo. During the ceremony, the Rosa Commacina, the University's highest award for a local personality, will be presented by Vice-Rector Umberto Piarulli. Fourteen University Medals will be awarded to professors who have become full professors in the last year. As per tradition, the hymns and Gaudeamus Igitur will be sung by Chorus Insubriae, the university choir directed by Maestro Pietro Colnago.
