

PRESENTATION

XXII Infopoverty World Conference

How could the Digital Citizen, with her rights and duties, build a fairer digital society? This is the focus of the 22nd Infopoverty World Conference launched in this moment of great fragility due to pandemics, wars and climate crises that must be necessarily faced with the awareness of great risks for our civilization. Scheduled to take place on December 1, 2022 at the United Nations Headquarters in New York and online, live-streamed on UN Webcast, this year edition intends to investigate the unit of the Digital Society, namely the Digital Citizen.

This Edition draws on the paths traced by the 20th Infopoverty World Conference "Towards the Digital Society inspired by SDGs". The 21st Infopoverty World Conference "How to build a fairer and more inclusive Digital Society?" further deepened the main challenges and constraints of the Digital Society by stressing how the post-industrial structures based on repetitive work, financial assets and representative democracy have inevitably shifted online. In such scenarios, new paradigms have overcome the space-time dimensions resulting in more and more complex digital mechanisms, as expressed during several preparatory meetings. Throughout the years, the Conference has continuously dealt with the advancements brought about by the Digital Revolution and has progressively discovered and launched "best-practices models" in the fields of telemedicine, e-learning, e-agriculture, and e-money. Established by OCCAM – Observatory on Digital Communication with the participation of many African and Latin American governments, many remote villages and disadvantaged communities have successfully applied the most ground-breaking E-services for Development, previously presented, and validated during the different editions of the Infopoverty World Conference. Stemming from the results achieved throughout the past 21 years of activities outlining who are the drivers of the Digital Revolution and how they operate in terms of e-services4Dev, the 22nd Infopoverty World Conference will draw a Plan of Action encompassing all possible options to empower the protagonist of the change in progress in all her associative dynamics and without whom the State as we know it would end up being an empty container of things thus preventing it from becoming a far-west lookalike or a pariah of spaces. The parameters of a new-born civilization must be recognized, collected, and directed towards a vision that enhances human rights and finds its inspiration in the SDGs proclaimed by the United Nations as the operational compass for orientation.
